CENTER FOR THE STUDY OF INTELLIGENCE

SEMINAR ON HUMINT EVALUATION

The Center for the Study of Intelligence is sponsoring a two-day seminar (11-12 December) on the subject of Evaluating Human Source Intelligence. Participants will be drawn from various elements of the Intelligence Community--including CIA, DIA, State, and RM, NIT, NSC, and Congressional Staffs--who share an interest in the topic. The purpose of the seminar is to illuminate the issue of why and how the value of HUMINT should be measured.

We will:

- Examine the need for and purposes of evaluating HUMINT;
- Share experiences with past and current evaluation practices and systems;
- Explore methods and techniques which might contribute to the development of more useful measures of the quality and effectiveness of HUMINT reporting.

STAT -- Focus primarily on reporting by [REDACTED]
STAT [REDACTED]

- Address the interests and needs of policy-makers, legislators, budget officers, collection managers, and analysts in the evaluation process.

Dates: 11 and 12 December

Place: Room 1036, Chamber of Commerce Building
4600 Fairfax Drive (at Glebe Road)
Arlington, Virginia
